

FANS HOPE FOR BAND OF BEST GALLOPERS

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Queen Victoria set an example for many years for her loyal subjects in the way of turning out great race horses at her Hampton Court nursery and to this day the blood is potent. Over at my Heather Farm I have found a useful plan of mating in the stallion War Cry and daughters of King Heather. It's a nick that I was confident would be a good one and so it is.

War Cry came from over the big pond and is a true representative of his noted ancestry. It is recalled that War Cry's sire, the Epsom Derby winner Sunstar, is a son of the famous Sundridge. It often happens that a sprinter, as was Sundridge, when the right kind of mares are picked out for him, sends out plenty of runners of the staying type.

What we started out to say, however, was that in the dam of Sundridge, Sierra, is found the strain—one of the strains, in fact—Queen Victoriamade of world wide importance. The Queen was the breeder of Springfield, sire of Sierra. That was a long time ago, way back in the seventies. Springfield was some pumpkins as a racer himself, winning eighteen of his twenty outings, and finished second in his other two. He had been sold as a yearling but after retirement from the turf found himself once more in the paddock of Hampton Court.

Sierra was purchased as a yearling by the Prince of Wales (later King Edward) for 1000 guineas and returned to Hampton Court, where she became the dam of Sundridge, War Cry's grandsire and other good ones.

In a period of about forty years Queen Victoria's stud turned out an Epsom Derby, three St. Leger, three Epsom Oaks, three One Thousand Guineas winners, an Ascot Cup winner, and a winner of the Grand National.

My point is just this:

Isn't it possible, right here in California, to arouse interest in races that could be renewed year after year (giving a little time, of course to breed the requisite stayers) such as the Derby, at one mile and one-half, the Oaks, at the same distance, the St. Leger, at one mile and three-quarters, the One Thousand, at a mile?

The right kind of exploitation in the press, getting away from the highly tiresome talk of odds and personalities, would help a lot. It's quite the thing, now and then, to import locally, horses but we hope in time broad-visioned writers can be developed.

We're not talking of handicaps but weight for age affairs, the only true way of determining the best performers of any age. A beginning is being made at Tanforan by the inauguration of the Tanforan Futurity, at one mile, in 1938.

JUST COULDN'T STAY AWAY FROM HOME LONGER

Three Months Vacation Cut To Less Than Two By Mayor and Mrs. Smith

Starting from Daly City on May 18 with the avowed intention of taking a three months vacation tour, Mayor and Mrs. H. H. Smith returned home unexpectedly on Saturday evening last week in a surprise move on their friends and neighbors.

Whether the mayor and his estimable wife became homesick for the friendly home fires was not explained, but we strongly suspect that was the principal reason for the shortening of their trip. However, they're safely back home, and that, to their many friends, is sufficient.

Their itinerary of the tour, as stated in practically their own words, follows:

Took a plane from Mills Field and went to Los Angeles, where we visited friends over the weekend. Left Los Angeles Monday morning by plane. A nice sun shiny day until we had passed over the Grand Canyon of Colorado and Boulder Dam. The plane follows the Grand Canyon for many miles, and it, together with the Boulder Dam, is a sight which cannot be described.

Our first stop was at Albuquerque, New Mexico, where we arrived after going through quite a rough rain and hail storm. Leaving Albuquerque, it is necessary for the plane to reach an elevation of 12,000 feet to clear the mountains. All of the country over which we traveled is wonderfully beautiful at this time of the year—even the Mojave desert.

The next stop was at Amarillo, Texas, which is in the vicinity of the dust storms we heard so much about at that time. However, it had been raining before our arrival and everything was just beautiful.

We next stopped at Wichita, Kansas, where we saw one of the finest airports on our journey.

The next stop was Kansas City, where we arrived just before dark, and from there the next stop was at Chicago, where we spent two days.

Following that, we went to South Bend, Indiana, where we picked up a Studebaker sedan which we had purchased through William A. Sweeney, the Studebaker dealer of Daly City.

Our next important stop was at Washington, D. C., where we spent eight days visiting all places of interest and had most enjoyable conferences with our representatives, Senator Hiram W. Johnson and Congressman John J. McGrath.

After one of the most interesting weeks one could possibly spend at the nation's capital, we proceeded to New York, making short stops at the various cities and places of interest.

OUR DALY CITY MERCHANTS IN ARRANGEMENT ANNUAL PICNIC

General Committee Reports Progress And Outlines Plan For Program

Arrangements were completed at the meeting of the Daly City Merchants Association, Wednesday evening of this week, for the annual picnic on August 11 at Oak Cove Park.

Reports were received from several other committees that progress was being made with matters entrusted to them.

The principal discussion was in regard to the picnic. It was proposed to make this year's affair the biggest and best so far held.

Members were added to the general committee and to the sub-committees previously appointed.

The committees as at present constituted are as follows:

General Committee of Arrangements—Pitschke, Williamson, Vireno, Bartoli, Weld, Clanton, Ruggeri, Twisten, Selmi, Sundermann, Fahy, Smith, O'Keefe, Callsen, Bodien, Mather, Pavlos, Newman, Rutter, Milo, Vasey, Stockton, Ferguson, Clay, Atkisson and Witt.

Parade—All members of the City Council of Daly City.

Band and transportation—F. T. Mather and W. E. Pitschke.

Refreshments—Vireno, Pavlos and Bartoli.

Games and prizes—Callsen, Bodien and Chief of Police Doyle.

Committees to contact merchants—For the County Line: Mather and

FUNDS FOR AID IN IMPROVEMENT STIRS ARGUMENT

W. L. Meussdorffer, Redwood City realtor, appeared before the County Board of Supervisors at the meeting on Monday and requested county participation to the extent of $469 in the $1598 improvement of Encinal avenue in the new Felton Gables at Menlo Park.

Figures on the project were presented by Deputy Engineer Richard Amick, which brought fire from Supervisor Albert Witt, Daly City, that County Engineer Carl Scott was not recognized as engineer by the majority of the board. Amick is a Scott deputy.

Supervisor Al Witt of Daly City objected to any county money being spent for the improvement of Encinal avenue or any other avenue until the same had been classified.

Supervisor John Poole, Redwood City, who offered his support to Meussdorffer's appeal, charged that every proposal coming up in his district was being blocked by the county engineer controversy.

"That's a lot of imagination," Witt fired back at Poole, declaring that 80 per cent of the road tax was being spent in the Third District.

Then Supervisor Walter High, Burlingame, also disputed Poole.

High then moved, and Poole seconded the motion, that Meussdorffer's request be submitted to the district attorney for a ruling as to whether the money can be spent.

NEW MUSICAL SPECTACLE AT LOCAL THEATER

First National Showing An Entirely Different Film At Daly City Theater

"Go Into Your Dance," First National's latest musical spectacle, opens at the Daly City Theater, Sunday, for a three showing—Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, July 14, 15 and 16, with Al Jolson and his wife, Ruby Keeler, co-starring.

This is the first time Jolson, the famous Broadway singer who introduced talking pictures to the public, and Miss Keeler, one time musical comedy star who rose to fame in two years on the screen, have ever played together before. Their team work is said to be remarkable.

Jolson and Miss Keeler have the romantic leads with Miss Morgan as the other woman who nearly spoils the life of Miss Keeler, a little dancing girl, as well as doing her best to wreck a show being staged, though her jealous rage, Glenda Farrell, as Jolson's sister, finally straightens matters in a sensational climax.

The other attraction is "Vagabond Lady," with Robert Young and Evelyn Venable.

FIREWORKS TO BE PROHIBITED IN DALY CITY

At a joint meeting of the City Council and Board of Fire Commissioners of Daly City, held Wednesday evening of this week, it was decided that in future years the ordinance prohibiting the sale or use of fireworks in this city will be enforced.

Co-operation of officials of all other cities and county officers will be asked so as to make sale and use of fireworks everywhere in the county unlawful, both in incorporated and unincorporated areas.

For several years past the City Council of Daly City, as well as those in other cities in the county, have granted permits for the sale of fireworks within the city limits. This practice will be discontinued in the future.

It was agreed that the hazards of fire and bodily injury to citizens was too great and more than over balanced the advantages accruing to our merchants from traffic in these wares.

The Board of Supervisors have already decided that the county ordinance prohibiting sale or use of this class of merchandise will be strictly enforced. It is hoped all citizens will co-operate in the future.

"PUBLIC WORKS" TO TAKE HAND ON ROADS

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

As I have mentioned in this column a number of times one could not conceive a better thing to do in the widely-flung public works program than to get busy on Alaska Highway construction, thus opening up the vast "Empire of the North" and in the meantime putting a great army to highly necessary labor. That is just the way events are tending.

Not only is President Roosevelt in favor of the International Road but he is working out a plan for the funds to come from the immense resources of the public works administration.

The chief executive of the nation assured A. J. Dimond, delegate to Congress from Alaska, in a letter that it was his desire to see the highway project pushed to a successful consummation.

The bill authorizing the survey of the proposed road, was favorably voted on last week by the house roads committee. The bill had already been approved by the senate.

The bill, sections of which were struck out by the committee, now empowers the President to negotiate agreements with Canada for a survey of the International Highway, for location and for construction.

On both the suggestions of the President and Secretary of the Interior Ickes the monetary features of the bill, which called for an appropriation of $2,100,000, were stricken from the bill.

Fulminations of Professor Lewis Haney about President Roosevelt continue in a San Francisco evening paper. An important factor in the building up of a country that had been on the verge of a major upheaval was action taken by the president of both gold and silver; he acted just in the nick of time, broadminded citizens admit that. What does Haney do in the way of characterizing necessary moves. Read:

"The utility bill, bad as it is, is not half as bad as the cynical repudiation of the gold clauses after wantonly abandoning the gold standard, and the silver buying folly."

Again:

"Can a leopard change his spots?"

And:

"Do they imagine that we prefer a mellow voice to consistency, truth and respect for tried institutions?"

Deepest pity should be extended to students, at an impressionable age as they are and who should be listening to discourses on the best that has been thought and said in the world, who are compelled to listen to such drive day after day.

Machinery has been shipped to the John Hall mine near Grant's Pass, Oregon, and it is expected a good deal of work will be done in the next few months. It looks as though 20 men will be employed steadily. It is reported a large amount of ore of good grade has been blocked out and is ready for mining and milling.

Up in Dan Creek, Alaska, placer operations have been held back by late frosts. Since its discovery back in 1903 by Dan Kane and others, Dan Creek has been a consistent producer. Some experts say millions more will be recovered than has ever been taken out. There is a new pipe line on the property of the Pardon's Mining Corporation and all in all it's one of the best hydraulic plants in that far-away section.

SPECIAL ELECTION FOR NEW COURT HOUSE ADDITION IN FALL

Tentative Agreement For Having Citizens Ballot On Bond Issue

At Monday's meeting of the County Board of Supervisors it was decided if the federal government will approve an $81,000 gift toward the construction of a $181,000 courthouse addition, the supervisors will order a special election so that the electorate may vote on bonds to take care of the other $100,000 needed for the building. No date for the election was set, awaiting word from the federal government on the $81,000 gift toward the project.

The county planning commission was authorized to draw up the formal application to the PWA, to be signed by Chairman Manuel Francis in the name of the county.

Executive Walter T. Kellogg was authorized to supply plans and specifications for the wing, and secure cost estimates.

It was agreed the election will be called on these conditions:

When and if the government grant is assured.

That the county's 203 precincts be consolidated as much as possible, and that the cost not exceed $7 per polling place and $3 per election officer, the same as paid for the state special election.

This will cut the election cost down to approximately $6000, County Clerk Hinman said.

The original plan to hold the bond election in conjunction with the state

GARDEN FLORAL PAGEANT TO BE ANNUAL EVENT

General Committee Named To Make Arrangements For County Wide Celebration

San Mateo County's $8,000,000 a year floral industry, the county's agricultural resources and its scenic and recreational attractions will be given nation-wide publicity with the staging next October of the San Mateo County Garden Floral Pageant.

Definite assurance that the affair will take place was obtained last Monday when the County Board of Supervisors unanimously voted $5000 to be used in defraying the promotional expenses in connection with the pageant.

The appropriation was voted after a special committee of nine waited upon the board. Heading this committee as chairman was Mayor C. A. Buck, of Burlingame, and its membership included Mayors Frank Simmen, of San Mateo, and Charles G. Lambert, of Redwood City; George Davis, of Millbrae; Rod McClellan, of Burlingame; Chester Lipman, of Burlingame; Fred Carlyle, widely known dramatic producer, and William C. McCarthy, director of publicity for San Mateo County.

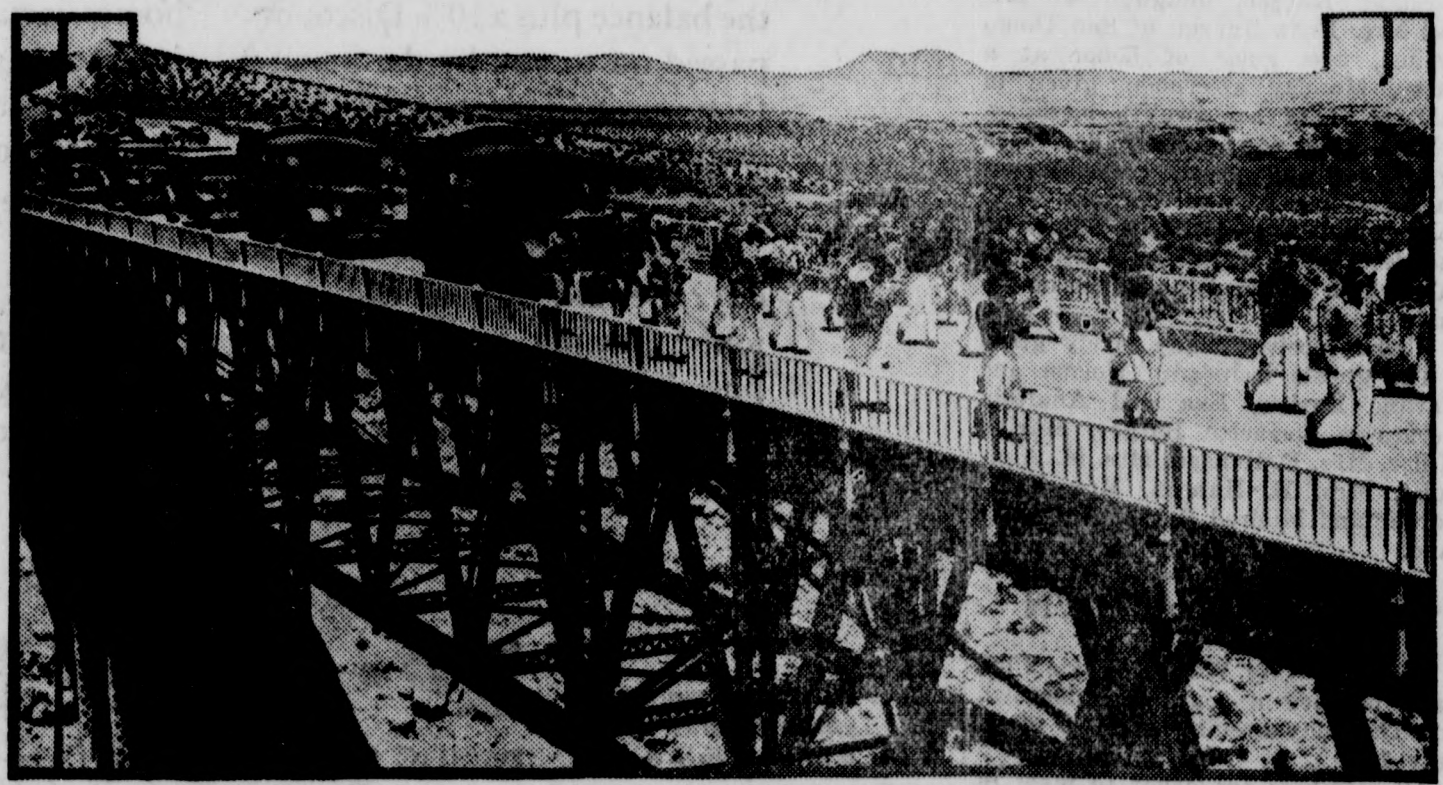

Appointment of the committee was made at a county-wide meeting held at the San Mateo city hall on June 28. At this meeting a preliminary survey of the possibilities of staging a floral pageant, not only of local, but of national importance, was thoroughly discussed.

Tentative plans for the affair were outlined and these were presented to the Board of Supervisors, winning that body's instant approval.

As the result of the board's action a second county-wide meeting will be held at the San Mateo city hall at 7:30 p. m. this evening (Friday). At this meeting a permanent organization will be perfected and officers selected to carry through the final pageant plans. All interested citizens of San Mateo County are invited to attend this meeting and lend their support to the undertaking, which, it is predicted, will focus the interest

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. MacCarthy of Bellevue avenue were hosts at a dinner party on Independence Day. The following guests were present: Mr.

JUST COULDN'T STAY AWAY FROM HOME LONGER

Our stay in New York was a few days, during which time we drove around considerably and saw things of most interest, including a trip to the top of the Empire State Building, which is 102 stories high and from which one can see twenty-five or thirty miles in every direction.

From there we journeyed to Boston and then on through Maine to the Canadian border at Van Buren. Following a splendid road from Van Buren to Cambelton, New Brunswick, we found a quite different country, evidently newly settled, with small homes, mostly log cabins, and apparently not very prosperous.

Our final eastern destination was on the north shore of the Bay of Chaleur on the Gaspe Peninsula, where I was born and where I lived six months in 1882. Here we found literally hundreds of relatives whom we had never met before and with whom we spent a most enjoyable week. This is mostly a farming country and apparently is fairly good land, and, although the people to us seemed quite poor, they evidently are quite satisfied and contented, even though there are very few automobiles and practically no radios and the mode of travel is by horse and buggy, dog carts, oxen, and what not.

Leaving there, we traveled to Quebec, which we found to be a very interesting city with much ancient history and many places of unusual interest.

Our next stop was at Montreal, a very beautiful city, kept exceptionally clean, and a place where it cost the government last year $980,000 to clear the snow from the streets. (It's a good thing it doesn't snow in Daly City.)

From there we passed through Toronto on our way to the Niagara Falls. After seeing the falls, we understood why people come from all parts of the world to see them.

The next day we went across the Canadian border into the United States at Detroit. We arrived again at Chicago, spent a few days there visiting friends, and then left for Omaha. We didn't take so very much interest in Omaha, as we had lost our travelers' checks and didn't know where we were to sleep that night, but the Western Union straightened things out for us.

Our next stop was at Cheyenne, which we found to be a very large and prosperous city, with many new homes being built. From there we went over the plains of Wyoming to our next stop, the Yellowstone National Park. The Yellowstone has many attractions, among them the geysers, the hot springs and the lakes, all of which were wonderful.

Leaving the Yellowstone, we traveled to Glacier National Park in northern Montana, and then once more into Canada to see the beautiful mountains and lakes of Banff and Lake Louise. It was here that we saw the most beautiful scenery of our trip.

After sightseeing there for a few days, we crossed the Rockies into British Columbia, went down the Columbia River to Portland, down the Redwood Highway and arrived home after having been away from Daly City seven weeks and having traveled over 10,000 miles.

A LITTLE LATE

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Duncan of 27 Willis street are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, born June 21.

and Mrs. E. L. MacCarthy and son Robert, Mr. and Mrs. C. Peck and son Billy, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. McHugh and children and Miss Marion Lynch.

Mrs. A. Delucchi and daughter Barbara Lee of Oliver street and Mrs. A. Hale and daughter Dianne are vacationing this week in the McHugh cottage, "Happy Hours," at Monte Rio.

Patsy Murray of Hanover street is enjoying a fine vacation in Santa Barbara as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Heges. Mrs. Heges is Patsy's sister.

Mrs. A. Kohlman and children of Bellevue avenue attended a birthday party Wednesday of this week, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Claverie of Balfour street in Oakland. The party honored Mr. Claverie on his natal day.

The members of the Colma Vista Grande Aerie of Eagles, No. 1848, will hold their regular monthly whist in Eagles Hall, Monday evening, July 15.

The members of the local order of Druids will hold their regular monthly whist Monday evening, July 22, in the Masonic Hall.

SURPRISE HONORS GRAND TRUSTEE

The Past Presidents Club of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, held a surprise dinner party in honor of Grand Trustee Alice M. Oldham at the Silver Moon Tavern, San Bruno, on Monday evening of this week.

The table was prettily decorated with a wishing well as the centerpiece and sprays of flowers along the table. Dainty nut cups were at each place.

Mrs. Hattie Kelly, on behalf of the Past Presidents Club, presented the guest of honor with a substantial gift in honor of her recent election as Grand Trustee at the Native Daughters convention held in Sacramento.

Mesdames Hattie Kelly and Frieda Schade were in charge of arrangements for the dinner, which was declared by all as a grand success.

Those in attendance included the organizer of the parlor, Mrs. Pauline Quirolo. The past presidents present were: Mesdames Mary May, Catherine Wight, Alice Anderson, Anne Biggio, Rena Mathias, Frieda Schade, Alice Oldham, Hattie Kelly, Matilda Heeringa, Irene Moresco, Florence Hopman and Julia Romer.

HONOR EASTERN GRAND OFFICER

A group of Catholic Daughters of America from Court St. Mary No. 1155 enjoyed a fine trip across the bay to Oakland, Wednesday of this week. The occasion was a luncheon and reception honoring Miss Mary C. Duffy of New Jersey, Supreme Regent of that order in the United States.

Mayor McCracken, the supervisors of Alameda County, the city council and the members of the Chamber of Commerce made possible the farewell luncheon and sightseeing tour which followed the luncheon several hours later. A similar luncheon took place in the same hotel ten years ago, honoring the same officer.

A large group of delegates from New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts, besides the delegates from the bay area, were present.

Monsignor Gleason and our beloved state chaplain, Father Cullen, gave short talks.

Miss Duffy was presented with some very lovely gifts.

The supreme regent and her corps of officers and delegates recently attended the convention at Seattle, Washington. The party left for Los Angeles and San Diego, Thursday morning of this week. The group will be met at San Diego by a large delegation of members, who are planning to attend the Catholic Daughters Day at the fair.

Among those who attended the luncheon from Court St. Mary were: Mesdames Ida Forrest, Angela Johnson, Azelda Kohlman, Margaret Roberson, Ethel Bolger, Margaret Fields, Agnes Denning, Katherine Core, Katherine Phelan, Mary Lehner, Ida Grummel and Anna Murray.

YOUNG WOMAN FALLS ON STAIRS AND BREAKS LEG

As Miss H. Norry of Oliver street was leaving the home of her sister, Mrs. Henry Sari, of Risel street, last Sunday afternoon, she stumbled and fell down the front stairs, sustaining a broken leg.

The injured young woman was taken to the Villa Sanatorium for treatment. She was later removed to the Community Hospital at Beresford.

The injured member which was broken just above the ankle, was set Monday of this week.

Miss Norry will be confined in the hospital for five or six weeks. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

GIVEN PARTY ON TWELFTH BIRTHDAY

Elaine Hansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Hansen of San Diego avenue, was guest of honor at a party, Monday afternoon, given in celebration of her twelfth birthday.

The table was prettily decorated in yellow and green crepe paper, baskets, favors and flowers. The color scheme was also carried out in the decoration of the huge birthday cake which occupied the center of the table.

Elaine received many lovely gifts. The guests included: Norma and Earline Barker, Eva and Analesia Troutman, Jeanette Barger, Marian Miller, Mrs. B. Hansen, Mrs. M. Almquist, Mrs. H. Hansen, Mrs. Ethel Barger and Mildred Bartling of Oakland.

TOUR CHINATOWN

The Daly City Womens Civic Club have planned a tour of Chinatown for Thursday evening of next week, July 18.

All members are asked to meet in front of McGraw's drug store at 7:30 o'clock.

Friends are also invited to join in the evening's outing.

JUSTICE COURT FOR DALY CITY

The honorable Board of Supervisors have very thoughtfully and considerately provided a Justice Court for the accommodation of the people of Daly City, and it will no longer be necessary to go to South San Francisco to file papers or to carry on litigation.

The new Daly City office is located at the corner of Mission and Wellington streets, up stairs, and the court room in the City Hall will be used for the trial cases. The Board of Supervisors, seeing the enormous amount of work which has accumulated for the Justice of the Peace to do, have also provided a clerk and an assistant clerk for the Justice Court, one of whom will be always in attendance at each of the offices, ready to give courteous and prompt attention to the wants of the people.

It will be necessary for the judge to divide his time between the two courts, and for the present he will generally be found in the Daly City office from 8:30 to 12 o'clock in the forenoon, and from 1:30 to 5 in the afternoon at South San Francisco. This, however, may have to be varied according to the requirements of certain cases, some of which take all day or even longer for trial.

The traffic calendar will for the present be called every Thursday morning at South San Francisco, but those receiving tags and residing in Daly City and vicinity may call at the Daly City office at any time for information or service.

The people of Daly City are invited to call and inspect their office and to become better acquainted with their servants, the Justice of the Peace, and the clerks of the court, who stand ready to give them every consideration commensurate with justice.

Very respectfully,
W. H. CLAY,
Justice of the Peace.

THE REASON

Mr. Peter Conci of Parkview avenue, manager of the Shell Oil Station on Mission street and Hillside Boulevard, has been passing out cigars to his many friends this week.

The reason for this liberality is that his wife presented him with a fine baby daughter, who was born at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning at St. Mary's Hospital. Both mother and daughter are reported as doing nicely.

Mrs. Conci is the former Miss Mary Corish of San Diego avenue.

COUNTY FLORAL FESTIVAL FUND GETS APPROVAL

Supervisors Agree To Aid In Financing County Project For Annual Showing

Monday saw definite assurance that San Mateo County would have a flower show and festival this fall was given at its meeting when the Board of Supervisors voted to underwrite the project to the extent of $5000.

George J. Davis of Millbrae, one of the festival committee members and a member of the group which staged the last flower show festival in this county in 1931, asked the board to set up the $5000 fund to guarantee financial success of the project, expressing the belief that, even if some of the amount were needed this year to meet a deficit, within a short time the annual affairs could be made to show a profit.

Davis pointed out that this county produced the finest flowers and perhaps largest amount of all counties in the state, and that a display of them would tend to give San Mateo county a great deal of advertising.

The fund voted by the supervisors will be set up in the publicity account and maintained only for the flower show, it was decided. Decision of the board to appropriate the money was unanimous. Supervisor Albert Witt putting the motion and Supervisor John Poole voicing the second.

Present plans call for the show to be held at Bay Meadows, near San Mateo this fall.

JUNIORS SPEND DAY AT COLLEGE

A group of local Junior Catholic Daughters, chaperoned by Mrs. Ida Forrest, spent Tuesday of this week at the Redemptorist College on Foothill Boulevard in Oakland.

Father Darmady, who conducted the last Novena at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, showed the delighted girls the beauty spots of the grounds and the college.

A very pleasant and long to be remembered day was enjoyed by all. The girls and their chaperon wish to thank Father Darmady for his kindness to them.

SYNOPSIS

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the withdrawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which city he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit. He takes passage with a cross-country auto party on a "share expense" basis. With five other members of the party, an attractive girl, Barry Trafford; middle-aged Giles Kerrigan; Sister Anastasia, a nun; and an individual whom he instinctively dislikes, Martin Crack, he starts his journey. Barry's reticence annoys him. To Kerrigan he takes at once, but he is unable to shake off a feeling of uneasiness.

CHAPTER II—Continued

He followed Hal into the lunchroom with the embarrassed friendliness of a whipped hound. Relief didn't at once come to the atmosphere with Hal's entrance. Crack's narrow look at Hal's face was uncertain, though one hand idly jostled the golf ball. And Barry—Hal laughed at himself for having forgotten that this thing was to be used against her; and he barely kept himself from looking at her, showing her his sincere, forgetful anger. He smiled amiably at Mrs. Pulsipher, saying "What? not started eating yet?" "No," she said, as if weariness had come to her in the short time he'd been gone. "I—we were wondering—" Her look went in timorous question to Miller, then back to Hal. "We were just—just waiting for you," she said.

"I wish you hadn't," said Hal gently. "Miller and I've just been arranging a sort of transfer; he's taking my place and I'm taking his." He added, "I've got the fares."

He saw Mrs. Pulsipher believe and recover. The nun's head was up and her gentle eyes on Hal's in something like proud gratitude, as if he had foreseen and spared her humiliation. Pulsipher gave a series of quick, single coughs, looked pleased and hopeful again; and Crack leaned away from the counter, his close-set eyes basking on Hal's in their own speculative laziness. Hal turned his back on Barry, wondering why the devil he had to start trembling, now it was all over. He prayed he would stop it before Barry noticed it; he felt her watching him.

Kerrigan came to his side as the others moved back toward the tables. "He tried it, 'ey?" His tone was judicial, but his brown eyes above the tough, florid cheeks were nimble with some special laughter.

Hal looked at him, frankly and humorously quizzical. "Yes, the louse," he said. "What's the joke?"

"I was wondering how long you'd keep from looking at her," Kerrigan said.

Hal gave a tight, sheepish smile and let his look answer Kerrigan's.

"Just wanted to gather myself a little and make the first one right," he said.

Kerrigan nodded brief commendation. "You've got old Spot-landing where he won't try this again?"

"Mm," said Hal, gathering up his change. "Got his money and his papers—and the keys. Got an idea about what we might do, too. Like to ask you later."

Without any definite demonstration, Kerrigan welcomed the "we." "Good," he said. "Hungry?"

"Yes," said Hal, remembering that he was, "You?"

"Yes."

Every one, including Miller, was seated at one of the big, white-enamel tables when they started back.

"Gathered yourself?" Kerrigan said without looking at him.

"Guess so," said Hal, smiling a little. "Go, sit beside her, then," said Kerrigan.

"Right," said Hal.

He pulled out the empty chair beside Barry—in next the wall. "You mind if I sit here?" he said, as lightly formal as he could manage.

She looked around at him without hurry, the parting of her lips delayed again till after the first smiling of her blue, yellow-flecked eyes. "No," she said in near-husky ease.

"Thank you," said Hal, still casual. "I—I'd like to thank you," she said quietly.

"For what?"

"What you've just done."

"Please don't," he said.

"Why not?" she said.

He turned to her, his look bland—to deny understanding of whatever significance her eyes might show him. But there was no special significance, only deliberate interest, as if she really wanted to know why not. And he had a new idea, exciting for its simplicity. He watched her an instant longer, then let ingenious smiling dissolve all his formality.

"I'll tell you exactly why," he said, leaning a little forward. "Because I didn't think Miller and the wit to try what he did. Because I should have stood there like a wooden Indian and let him get away with it if you hadn't looked at me the way you did. There. But I ask you please not to look at me that way any more if you can help it, because it's rotten for my temper."

Her lips parted further over bright teeth, and there was nothing of defense left in her look. And after he had involuntarily felt the compliment in her candid pleasure, he realized how beautifully that leashed light beamed her eyes—tree of country, traced with reticent interest—sulted the soft, clear composure of her face.

"That's all darned honest of you," she said.

"Aren't you used to it—honesty?" said Hal.

She dropped her eyes, closed her lips, but she was still smiling when she looked up again. There was nothing conscious or dramatic about her saying, "No—not especially. But that doesn't stop my liking it."

"I'm glad," he said. "That makes it easy to be honest again. Honesty is my curse—one of them."

Her smile, and the light behind it, slowly disappeared. She watched him a moment, not thinking of what he'd said. "I like . . ." She began, and then the waitress' arm drove between them, her finger stabbing an item on the bill of fare that Barry held. "Corn-beef is delicious; veal chops is out."

"Out where?" said Hal.

"Veal chops is finished," she said.

Barry moved the card so he could look at it, too, her eyes on it, but uninterested. Hal glanced up quickly—across and down the table. Crack wasn't watching them; but Hal knew he had been.

The hotel couldn't take them all, and Mrs. Pulsipher was certain it would be too dear any way; but down the road a little they found cabins; the 75c sign convinced Mrs. Pulsipher and the sign "Showers" convinced Hal.

Pairing the party was easy: the Pulsiphers for one cabin, Barry and Sister Anastasia for another, then Hal and Kerrigan, with Miller left for Crack. Miller started for his bed at once, peeling his coat awkwardly as he went.

"Miller?" Hal called, after him. The man turned, grinning sleepily cleverness which Hal hoped was merely his continued attempt at ingratiating.

"Bugs," Hal said.

"Ain't gonna need 'em just for the one night," he said. "I don't need mine."

"Get 'em out," said Hal; and Miller went about it, still grinning.

As he undressed, Hal inspected the night shelter with quiet awe. The three-burner kerosene stove on the stained shelf—black, oiled dust thick on its underparts and crusty tracings of many bollings-over on top; an introduction to "realism." Some part of every thread in the carpet showed, with so much unbeaten dust scuffed into it that you wondered how you could be sure the thing was not antique. On the "bureau"—a shelf covered with spotted oilcloth and dignified with a murderous fragment of mirror—lay a broken comb, some hairpins, and part of a pink elastic garter.

Hal sat himself naked on the prickly blanket of his bed, and in a moment a trickle of sweat darted down the middle of his chest. All the places all across the continent can't be like this, he thought. Poverty is pitiable, in a front-line dugout or in the slum room of some one who clings to old habits of tidiness; but when it begins to fringe off into squatter, pitiable's not the word. Miller's probably asleep now—comfortable here, with his clothes on. But the others—the Trafford girl, the good nun; none of them, not even complacent, dreaming Crack can be—

Kerrigan came back from the shower, his graying hair in damp curls on his forehead, his cheeks glowing.

"Hello, Colonel," said Hal, smiling. "How's the shower?"

"I wouldn't like to guess what they keep there in winter," Kerrigan said. "But if you hear the federal men, it's easy to bail out. The door into the front store swings open whenever you happen to think. Crack's in there now, but he said he'd send up a rocket when he was finished." He dug a freshly laundered suit of blue-and-white striped pajamas out of his bag and tossed them to the bed. Hal looked at them gratefully, their freshness like a small pool in the baking wooden room.

"What was your thought about what next?" Kerrigan asked.

"Oh," said Hal. "Something like this. I shouldn't think any of 'em would be disappointed if we dropped Miller and his car. I know a fellow in a company in Detroit—know him well enough to ask him a favor. What would you think if I got him to put us on to a good second-hand car and trust us for the price till we get it to the Coast and sell it? If Miller was going to make a profit on the fares, we ought to be able to break even anyway. And if he can find the way, we can. What d'you think?"

"The scheme of a genius, a titan," Kerrigan rumbled, taking cigarettes from his coat.

"We can try it," said Hal. "Only look—if we could tell the others—not tell them that it's through a friend of mine we're getting the car; if we could say you and I were chipping in on a bargain and expected a profit on the Coast."

Kerrigan's eyes were friendly with approval. "You mean the are-you-any-relation-to-Fredrick-Ireland sitchation?" he said.

Hal nodded.

Then a shadow fell on Kerrigan's look and he turned his head dubiously toward the door, saying, "Hi there, nippers. Finished?"

The door was ajar and Crack's head was stuck around it. "Yes," said Crack, smiling with tentative amiability, as if he hoped to be asked in.

"Thank you very much," said Hal.

The door closed without sound; Hal and Kerrigan looked at each other, both listening.

After a moment Hal said in a subdued tone, "What does he carry that silly golf-bag for?"

Kerrigan shook his head. "Why do you suppose that oaf in New York picked on him to be with the Trafford gal?"

"Don't know," said Hal. "Except the only man I've seen this year stupider than Larsen is Miller."

There was a car at the gas pumps, and Hal in yellow slicker and red-leather slippers walked across the grass with the headlights full on him, feeling as if he were on the stage of the Hollywood Bowl. He found the Gents' place all that Kerrigan had said of it. But the water that fell on him from the shower was cool and pristine and good, like delicious rain. And as he reveled in it, he piously acknowledged the miracle that made so simple a thing as cool water a tonic for body, a wine for spirit, an essence of immaculate luxury.

The flow of his shower slackened as the sound of raining began in the next compartment, beyond the partition that didn't bother to reach the ceiling. He heard a short breath taken—of pleasure and eagerness; and then Barry's near-husky voice quietly said, "Oh, d—n it."

Hal gave a single laugh of pleasure. "Can I help?" he said.

"Where are you?" she said.

"Next door. What's happened?"

"I walked into this b—this so-and-so shower with my darned wrist-watch on."

"Ah, cry-making," said Hal. "Sorry."

"You don't sound it, but thanks just the same. Gosh, isn't it good—the water?"

"Beautiful," he said sincerely. "Beautiful. As beautiful as—as—"

"As cool water running over you after a hot day in an old car with seven people and a dog."

"Where's the dog?"

"Here—having his shower too. He loves showers."

Hal chuckled. "I'd like to see—I'd like—Well, yes."

"Good," said Barry; "I'm glad."

"Glad you can't. I haven't—I'm not—"

"What! not at all?"

"Well, practically not," she said. "Just jodhpurs and an old bed-jacket."

"I suppose you'll be going in for comedy in Hollywood," Hal said.

"Who told you I was going to Hollywood?" she said, at once guarded.

"You did."

"I didn't."

"You didn't say it with your mouth, but everything else about you did," said Hal.

"Oh," she said coolly. "You're one of those people who knows lots and lots about other people just by looking at them."

"No," he said. "I'm mostly pretty unobservant."

For a moment she said nothing under the cool showering of water. Then curiously, "What's a snob?"

"What do you want—an epigram?"

"No, I want to know what you say a snob is."

"A snob," he said, thinking, "a snob is what envious people call some one who minds his own business and only cultivates people he likes."

"Who made that up?"

"I did."

Her tone wasn't flippant, merely interested: "To fit yourself?"

"N'ho," Hal laughed. "Why?"

"Just wondered. Sometimes today you were what I thought a snob might be. You weren't so darn nice to the Pulsiphers, and they were ready to be nice to you. You didn't let down for Kerrigan till you saw he wasn't going to run after you. And—"

"I wasn't asking anybody to run after me," said Hal. "I don't think I'd like it. And—what else?"

"And you made me mad."

"I'm sorry," he said happily. "But I was—I wasn't trying not to. You were making me mad, even before you looked at me there, where we had dinner."

"Ah? How?"

"Was it honest or pretty?"

"Whenever you like," she said carelessly.

"Guess which it is, then," said Hal. "I thought you were too sure of your looks—wondering all the time which of us you'd have to keep from getting fresh. That made me mad."

"Because you wanted me to be pleased and surprised when you told me about my looks? Because you didn't want it made hard to get fresh?"

Two-Wheeled Car Predicted

Automobile of the Future Likely to Differ Greatly From Present-Day Models; Perfect Stream-Lining to Be the Main Objective.

Are the third and fourth wheels on our present-day autos as needless as a fifth wheel on a wagon? Will the automobile of the future roll over roads with the greatest of ease on two large spherical wheels instead of the four now in vogue?

These are the questions that may be popping up in the minds of auto engineers as they study the recent patent granted to Boris von Loutzkoy, of Berlin, Germany, for what he calls a "Monotrack Vehicle."

Von Loutzkoy's main object is to get perfect streamlining, and he wants to streamline the tires, too. Ordinary tires do not give such perfect streamlining and then by using four of them you have to provide mud guards which also create problems in cutting down the wind resistance.

Two large, pneumatic spherical wheels, like big rubber balls, one at each end of the body, would do the trick, he reasons. You can shape the body over these wheels so that body and wheels co-operate or merge to form a streamlined unit. It looks much like a bullet, with front wheel and windshield forming the nose. Air currents skim off this car with a minimum amount of resistance, claims the inventor.

Mud guards are eliminated, so are springs. The large wheels themselves give you spring action as well as kneed action. Of novel structure all around, their hollow interior is subdivided into compartments or chambers, each of which is blown up with air through suitable valves. It's like having a number of inner tubes in a sphere. If one of these compartments gets punctured, it doesn't mean you have a flat tire, because all the other compartments expand correspondingly and fill up the space. Thus danger of overturning as a result of a blowout is eliminated.

"The volume of air of such hollow spheres," points out the inventor in his patent, "surpasses the volume of air of the usual tires by ten times and more, so that the usual leaf or helical springs may be dispensed with. In consequence the weight of the vehicle is considerably less, the cost of manufacture is reduced and through the elimination of the spring elements all deficiencies inherent in such devices are avoided."

New Instrument Speeds Up Work of Surveyors

A scientific device which speeds up surveying and map-making and renders unnecessary a lot of computations has been invented and is now part of the instrument which surveyors call the Abney level. The inventor is Prof. John Sammi, of the department of forest management of the New York State college of forestry at Syracuse university, says the Scientific American.

The Abney level is the most efficient instrument for making maps and running boundary lines for forestry purposes and Professor Sammi has made it still more efficient. In fact, it will now solve problems in geometry for the surveyor that only "Vehicles equipped with such hollow spheres do not require mud guards," he states, "and the hollow spheres also serve as the customary buffers (like bumpers, shock absorbers, knee action gadgets) and in consequence they insure desirable protection against accidents of all kinds."

Not only do you get all these, claims the inventor, but due to the large surface of the hollow sphere and the single-track arrangements, skidding on asphalt pavement when slamming on the brakes is avoided. Then with his car, you can get around curves much better than you can on four wheels. And you don't need such a powerful motor to make it run.

The inventor's auto recalls recent reports from Russia of experiments with a monorail train built along these lines. The train would be mounted on large steel spheres for wheels, which instead of speeding on rails, would roll along in a narrow specially built concrete trough-like channel or road.—Harry Goldsmith, in the Washington Post.

YOU ALWAYS GET BETTER QUALITY AT NO HIGHER PRICE WHEN YOU BUY A FIRESTONE TIRE WITH FIRESTONE NAME AND GUARANTEE

Tires may look alike on the outside, but on the inside where blowouts start, they are different. Firestone Tires are made blowout-proof by Gum-Dipping, a patented extra process which soaks every cotton cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber. In fact, every 100 pounds of cotton cords absorb eight additional pounds of liquid rubber. This special process prevents internal friction and heat, the main cause of blowouts. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped, yet you pay no more for Firestone blowout-proof protection than you are asked to pay for tires built without this patented safety construction feature.

The make of tires you buy for your car becomes a matter of vital importance when you realize that there were 882,000 automobile accidents in 1934 injuring 954,000 people and killing 36,000 and that 43,000 of these accidents were caused by blowouts, punctures and skidding.

Firestone High Speed Gum-Dipped Tires hold all world records on road and track for safety, speed, mileage and endurance. These records emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof but give greatest protection against skidding.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY

1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding.

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Kelly Pettilo won the race and broke the record over this 26-year-old rough brick track without tire trouble—in fact, not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles in 23½ hours, at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. This is made possible by the tough, wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This thick, rugged, scientifically designed tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of cords under the tread. This is a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequaled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

ROCK CREEK PLACERS IN FULL OPERATION

Spokane Company Ready For First Clean-Up In Few Weeks

Rock Creek placers, operated by Alaska Continental Gold Mines, originating in Spokane, and which has grown to considerable proportions in three years, has been in operation during this past two months and bids fair to add materially to the province's gold output.

During the first five weeks 70,000 cubic yards of gravel was moved and sluiced out of No. 1 pit. No clean-up has so far been made, though there has been some recovery from sampling of riffles in the shape of considerable coarse gold, in addition to good tonnage of black sand concentrated reported to contain values ranging from hundreds to thousands of dollars per ton.

Reserves at the Rock Creek property are estimated at five million cubic yards, averaging, according to extensive tests, 30 cents per yard. Equipment consists of a 9,000-foot steel pipe, tapering from 36 to 20 inches, with 8-inch giant operating under 257-foot head.

With but five men employed on two shifts, excavation and sluicing has averaged 2000 cubic yards daily, handled at a reported cost of less than five cents per cubic yard. Joseph E. House, formerly of Barkerville, Cariboo district, considered a first class practical hydraulic operator, recently succeeded Harry Powell in charge of operations.

Paystreak Four Feet

Up to the middle of the present month approximately 100,000 yards has been removed, much of it overburden, averaging around 12½ cents per yard. The main paystreak is four feet in thickness resting on bedrock. A large tonnage of semi-concentrated gravel has collected in the bottom of the pit, since, for a considerable distance, it sloped back from the outlet, instead of upward, as expected.

The rim has now been exposed along the entire back of the pit and rises perpendicularly and solidly to a height of 20 or 30 feet above the bottom of the pit. Excavating and sluicing will be completed and the pit will then be pumped out for the clean-up, scheduled within the next two weeks or so.

Naturally, the pit is expected to contain much higher values than the overburden, which has already passed through the sluice. A partial clean-up of the riffles made a few weeks ago yielded close to $5000, deposited with Canadian Bank of Commerce at Greenwood.

Operating No. 1 pit has been almost completely and the miners will pass on to No. 2 pit, where the set-up is about ready. Only three men will be necessary on each shift thereafter, so that costs will be cut down to approximately $20 per shift, with movement averaging about 1000 yards per shift, about the previous average.

Recovery 20 Cents

From a private source we are advised that it is reasonably safe to figure upon average recovery of at least 20 cents a yard, so that there seems every reason to believe the project will be eminently successful.

Dump room below No. 1 pit is somewhat limited and it has been necessary to use drag line to keep the channel clear, but from No. 2 pit, on down the creek, the movement will be natural.

No 1 pit is about 20 feet in width across the face and more than 200 feet in length back to the rim. Average depth of gravel throughout was 60 feet and beyond the rim the gravel contains no pay. No. 2 pit and its successors, all downstream, will be approximately the same size.

Rock Creek flow is now ample to run two 7-inch monitors, and as but one giant is in use the waste flow over the dam about equals the amount of water used.

The company, operating in British Columbia under the firm name of Porter & Condit until registered in this province, has in three years grown to be one of the most important concerns of its kind in the west, operating three hydraulic projects of magnitude.

Big Alaska Project

The major property is the Bird and Peters Creek placer deposits near Anchorage, Alaska, operated last year by the then owner, Alaska Exploration Co. It is looked upon by competent authorities as one of the most extensive rich placers of the territory, with reserve of gravel estimated at 40 million cubic yards.

Operations to date have demonstrated an average recoverable gold content of 74.7 cents per cubic yard, as shown by sluicing of 156,000 yards. Property is equipped with 36 to 20-inch hydraulic steel pipe and 7-inch giants operating under head of 250 feet. Operating costs are placed at about 17 cents per yard. Sluicing started on June 11, under direction of Harry Powell, formerly in charge of the Rock Creek work.

The president of the company is William J. Porter, well known in the west as a member of one of the most successful contracting families, with connections in Vancouver. It has been mainly financed by Mr. Porter and his friends, and has made little or no appeal to the public for funds. Joseph McCarthy, a leading attorney of Spokane, is secretary. Head offices are maintained in that city.

The Rock Creek operations revive a district, now served by the Kettle Valley branch of the Canadian Pacific and Greenwood-Grand Forks highway, that was the scene of extensive placer excitement in the 60's, but which has remained inactive and forgotten till the present company realized its possibilities under modern methods of operation.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, July 14, on the subject "Sacrament."

The Golden Text will be: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (1 Cor. 10: 31). Bible selections will include the following passage from Romans 7: 1, 6: "Know ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? . . . But now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held; that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter."

A passage from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "As a material, theoretical life-basis is found to be a misapprehension of existence, the spiritual and divine Principle of man dawns upon human thought, and leads it to 'where the young child was,'—even to the birth of a new-old idea, to the spiritual sense of being and of what Life includes" (p. 191).

WEEKLY BULLETIN

By Chief A. P. Chesney

Fourth of July has passed with a great list of fires and hundreds injured throughout the United States.

In our own home town we had one fire in one of the public stands erected for the purpose of selling fireworks. The fire department was fortunate that it was an open air stand and the fire was handled by the members of the department detailed for that purpose and the fact that we had installed fire extinguishers around these stands helped. As it was, the alarm called out four companies. If this same fire had occurred inside of a building we cannot tell how much damage would have been done.

There were several other alarms traceable to firecrackers.

We also had one serious casualty caused by a premature explosion.

One of the fires was in a residence whose owners had gone to the country for the weekend, but had neglected to shut off the electric current. The consequences were an overload came in over an extension cord attached to the bed and reading lamp. The entire bed was consumed and walls of the bedroom badly smoked. If this fire had not been discovered by neighbors it would have been a rather expensive piece of amateur electric wiring.

Answer: An English author who wrote "Three Men in a Boat" and "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

Question: What has Prof. C. H. Myers of Cornell University recently accomplished in the Department of Plant Breeding?

Answer: He has produced an odorless cabbage. It took 4000 cabbages and six years to perfect this aristocrat, but it will not "smell up the house while cooking." Thus far there are only 10,000 seeds of this new strain, so they will not be seen in markets for some time.

Question: What are some facts worth knowing about Amelia Earhart?

Answer: 1. Was the first of either sex to fly the Pacific from Hawaii to California.

2. Was the first woman to cross the Atlantic by plane.

3. Was the first woman to fly the Atlantic alone.

4. Was the first woman to fly the Atlantic twice.

5. Was the first woman to fly an Autogyro.

6. Was the first woman to make a non-stop solo flight across the continent.

MOTOR HEAT CAUSES

The most common causes of motor overheating are exhausted water supply; low oil supply; dirty or clogged radiator; broken or slipping fan belt; late spark; and excessive carbon deposits in the combustion chamber.

Tire Qualities Enemies

Tires need two virtues, primarily, it is stated by an expert. They are known as cushioning and cornering ability.

The two are mutually exclusive and it is up to the motorist to keep the tires inflated to that point which represents the happy compromise — the pressure recommended by the manufacturer.

PRIZES INCREASED FOR STATE FAIR HORSE SHOW

The California State Fair horse show, oldest on the Pacific Coast, has added $1000 to its 1935 prize list to care for added events in this spectacular night feature, which opens August 31. Stable owners will have a total of over $17,000 in purses to attract them to this pioneer show ring.

The six horse team class has received a $500 increase to provide larger secondary prizes for those who take part in this exciting event.

Box holders at the coming fair also pay a slightly higher tariff than in former years. The price of six seat boxes has been raised from $25 to $35 and a tier of four seat boxes recently installed are priced at $23.50.

PETROCCHI TOYS WITH BEES IN FOURTH GAME

Ninth Inning Slug - Fest Supports Brilliant Pitching of Right Handers;
Extra Hits Count

(By Al Gould)

The home team, staging their favorite specialty, a last minute batting rally, came from behind to defeat the strong Burlingame Bees, Sunday afternoon at Burlingame, in the fourth game of the second half of the Peninsula League series, by the score of 8 to 3.

"Lola" Petrocchi, home town pitching ace, toyed with his rivals, letting down the Killilea brothers and company with six well scattered hits, and missed a shut-out victory only by the erratic playing of his team mates in the second inning. Morretton, the Burlingame second baseman connected for three of his team's six bingles.

Kirby, Nelder and Dinneen led the slug fest for the home team, with three bingles apiece. Nelder's double to left in the ninth, driving home Kirby and Carrasco, which was followed by Dinneen's smashing home run to deep center, chasing home Maloney and Nelder, sewed up the Uball game for the home club.

The play by play report will acquaint the fans with the spirit of play furnished by their home team.

FIRST INNING

Daly City—Kirby doubled to center. Carrasco fanned. Maloney out, Morretton to B. Killilea. Vasquez flied to Nelson. One hit, no runs, no errors. Burlingame—M. Killilea walked. B. Killilea walked. Cray flied to Maloney. M. Killilea being doubled at third, Maloney to Vasquez to Kirby, on some of the fastest handling of the ball ever witnessed. Mobley forced B. Killilea at second, Carrasco to Vasquez. No hits, no runs, no errors.

SECOND INNING

Daly City—Nelder out, M. Killilea to B. Killilea. Dinneen singled to center. Albrecht sacrificed, B. Killilea unassisted. Kondeff walked. Petrocchi fanned. One hit, no runs, no errors.

Burlingame—Smith out, Carrasco to Dinneen. Nelson walked. Morretton singled through Vasquez's legs, sending Nelson to third, Wilson safe, when Kirby threw wide to Dinneen, Nelson scoring, Morretton going to third and Wilson to second. Foge drove a single through short, scoring Morretton and Wilson. M. Killilea grounded to Carrasco, who threw wide to Vasquez at second, both runners being safe. B. Killilea popped to Dinneen. Cray fanned. Two hits, three runs, two errors.

THIRD INNING

Daly City—Kirby singled to center. Carrasco forced Kirby at second, B. Killilea to M. Killilea. Maloney popped to Morretton. Vasquez singled to left. Nelder singled to deep short, loading the sacks. Dinneen got an infield hit, scoring Carrasco. Albrecht popped to M. Killilea. Four hits, one run, no errors.

Burlingame—Mobley fanned. Smith flied to Maloney. Nelson fanned. No hits, no runs, no errors.

FOURTH INNING

Daly City—Kondeff out, M. Killilea to B. Killilea. Petrocchi out the same way. Kirby out, Cray to B. Killilea. No hits, no runs, no errors. Burlingame—Morretton doubled to left. Wilson out, Kirby to Dinneen. Foge popped to Kirby. M. Killilea flied to Nelder. One hit, no runs, no errors.

FIFTH INNING

Daly City—Carrasco out, M. Killilea to B. Killilea. Maloney flied to Smith. Vasquez walked. Nelder at bat. Vasquez caught at first, Wilson to B. Killilea. No hits, no runs, no errors.

SEVENTH INNING

Daly City—Petrocchi fanned. Kirby fanned. Carrasco doubled to center. Maloney singled to right, scoring Carrasco. Vasquez flied to Mobley. Two hits, one run, no errors.

Burlingame—Wilson singled between third and short. Foge sacrificed, Petrocchi to Dinneen. M. Killilea popped to Petrocchi. B. Killilea out, Vasquez to Dinneen. One hit, no runs, no errors.

EIGHTH INNING

Daly City—Nelder flied to Nelson. Dinneen popped to Morretton. Albrecht singled through third. Kondeff forced Albrecht at second, Cray to Morretton. One hit, no runs, no errors.

Burlingame—Cray fanned. Mobley fanned. Smith safe on Kondeff's error. Nelson at bat. Smith stole second. Nelson singled to right and Smith was out at plate on a perfect peg by Nelder to Kondeff. One hit, no runs, one error.

NINTH INNING

Daly City—Petrocchi beat out a slow grounder to third. Kirby beat out a bunt down the third base line. Carrasco beat out a bunt down the first base line, filling the bases. Maloney drove one at B. Killilea, who made a brilliant stop and perfect peg to Wilson, nabbing Petrocchi at the plate. Vasquez fanned. Nelder doubled to left, scoring Kirby and Carrasco. Dinneen cleaned the bases with a home run to deep center, chasing Maloney and Nelder across the plate. Albrecht singled to left. Kondeff smashed a double to left, scoring Albrecht. Petrocchi flied to Cray. Seven hits, six runs, no errors.

Burlingame—Morretton singled to left. Wilson at bat; Morretton stole second. Wilson fanned. La Rue batting for Foge. La Rue was hit by pitched ball. M. Killilea forced Morretton at third, Kondeff to Kirby. B. Killilea popped to Carrasco, ending the game. One hit, no runs, no errors.

SPORT LIGHT ON BASEBALL

The home team will be at it again next Sunday afternoon. Meaning, of course, the Daly City Tanforan baseball nine. And, if you have forgotten, they are playing for the indisputable leadership of the Peninsula League. The local team is on top, like the frosting on a layer cake. They have won four games and lost none in the second half, but are closely pressed for the championship by the Regal Amber nine of Redwood City, which team has won three games and lost one. Well, fans, these two teams are to meet Sunday at Redwood City, and a whale of a game may be expected.

In Matty Sullivan and Lola Petrocchi the home team has a pair of pitching aces that are at tops right now. These right handers have everything in a pitching way and back it with their great fighting hearts. They have never let up for a minute, for the type of teams they have been facing have been battling all the time, just waiting for these twirlers to let up so they could smash through their fortifications at the slightest opportunity. They have had troublesome moments, of course, for any and all pitchers have those, when battling such fine ball clubs as those the home team has been meeting. But in every pinch their support has taken care of them. The lads back of Matty and Lola have played with that spirit which carried the home team to the commanding position it holds at this time. Sullivan has been hitting the horse hide at a 286 clip, while Petrocchi has been pasting the pillet for an average of 259.

When the pitching forces of any ball club are at their best, they must have a battery mate who should know what to do at the proper time. The local team has that boy in George Kondeff. This youngster has every qualification which aids a pitcher and knows when and how to use those sterling assets. The hitting ability of this lad is well proven in his average of 376.

The infield "supreme" of the Peninsula League, that favorite combination of Kirby, Carrasco, Vasquez and Dinneen, is second to none in the bush league ranks. These lads have every asset that it takes to play championship baseball, and their hitting power is feared by all opposing pitchers. Kirby at 379, Carrasco at 333, Vasquez at 347, and Dinneen at

A combination that plays together with a spirit of all for one, and one for all is composed of Maloney, Albrecht and Nelder. The boys are batting the pillet as follows: Maloney 423, Albrecht 304, and Nelder 500. A team average of 363. And when the home club is hitting that way it is tough on any pitcher.

Find Valuable Addition to the Vitamin Family

Just as diet-conscious people are beginning to feel at home with vitamins A, B, C, D, and E, the scientists discover a brand new vitamin, K. It is the name given to the newest member of the family. It was discovered by two workers in the Biochemical Institute of Copenhagen university.

Both workers believe K will be valuable in the treatment of anemia.

They learned that chickens fed on a special diet developed deficiency diseases, leading to anemia. The disease was cured by a fat soluble vitamin found in hog liver, hemp seed, certain vegetables such as tomatoes and kale, and, to a lesser degree, in many cereals. This leads the scientists to believe these foodstuffs contain an essential vitamin. When it is absent deficiency disease sets in. It is supposed the lack of vitamin K causes a decrease in the clotting and accelerating component in blood.

No Substitute for Shirtwaist Frock

PATTERN 2222

You can get by this summer without many things—but NOT without that "indispensable"—The Shirtwaist Frock! And indeed, why should you even try, when a very few yards of smart striped cotton shirting and a little effort can produce the pictured result? In town, in the country, on the links, or driving your car you'll find that "action back," the answer to your prayers. The inverted skirt pleat makes for unhampered freedom and the slashed brevity of the sleeves was designed with a "heat wave" in mind. Every woman will have one shirtwaist frock—but the smart woman will make several!

Pattern 2222 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3½ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York city.

BADEN KENNEL CLUB FEATURE

Baden Kennel Club, mecca of California racing enthusiasts, will offer another thrilling program tonight, which will feature many of the young dogs which were developed at the current meeting.

The future of the sport, according to club president, R. C. Stickle, is the development of a pure bred greyhound breeding industry within the state, and for that reason the South San Francisco track is taking special pains to encourage young greyhounds.

The first race on each program is devoted to these youngsters, and from their ranks have graduated some outstanding prospects. Among the best of these is Laddies Lad, which is racing with the most experienced dogs at the track.

The crop of pups at Baden this season is the most promising in the track's history, Judge H. M. Barton declares, and he counts upon the young dogs to carry greyhound racing to new heights of popularity.

MINING NOTES OF VARIOUS SECTIONS

Consolidated Gold Alluvials of B. C., operating the big Wingdam "deep lead" mine, Caiboo district, recovered 86 ounces of gold and four pounds of amalgam from a six-day run, with five "parties" or crews working five faces in three shifts.

The clean-up, worth close to $4000, was made at the Sanderson mine, where the inter-glacial moraine, as quite distinct from the deep lead channel, is being worked. Within a few days it is expected that the number of working faces will be doubled, as also weekly recovery.

Alan R. Ker, managing director of Quesnelle Quartz Mining Co., was a recent airplane passenger to New York, where he went on business connected with financial arrangements for completion of development plans and milling equipment when the management considers sufficient reserves in sight.

Development work during the past two years has completely rehabilitated the property, which since the 80's has been regarded as one of the rich lode mile possibilities of the Cariboo district.

Among companies which have recently filed statements for registration with the Securities & Exchange Commission at Washington, D. C., are:

Hecla Mining Co., listed on the New York Curb and Standard Stock Exchange, Spokane; Gladstone, Northport, and Silversmith, Sloane district, both listed on Standard Stock Exchange of Spokane.

Hecla and Silversmith are traded among unlisted stocks on the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Golden Messenger mine, near Helena, Montana, is under option for $200,000 to United Gold Mines, directed by Clement K. Quinn of Duluth, Minn.

A recent report from Spokane, headquarters of the company, says that the 125-ton mill erected by United Gold Mines, has yielded about $100,000 from ore running from .22 to .24 oz. wold per ton since January.

The 50-ton Marcy ball mill plant of Richstrike Gold Mines, near Redding, Shasta county, California is operating.

SPECIAL ELECTION FOR COURT HOUSE WING IN AUTUMN

Tentative Agreement For Having Citizens Ballot On Bond Issue

referendum election August 13 was abandoned, when District Attorney Ferrell gave his opinion that the government's decision on the application for PWA funds would not be received in time.

The board voted $1500 for the continuation of predatory animal control in the county.

Considerable discussion over the method of weed abatement arose, when the Menlo Park fire district asked the board to approve a resolution providing for the clearing of lots. The resolution provides that lot owners will be notified to clear their lots of weeds, and if they fail to do it within a set time, the fire district will do it and charge the lot owner for the work.

The weeds were banded as fire hazards, and dangerous to adjoining property. Before the board finally approved the request, Supervisor Witt urged the project be made county wide and done with unemployed labor. Approval, however, was given only to the Menlo Park area.

The session continued into the late afternoon, after which the supervisors sat as a board of equalization.

GARDEN FLORAL PAGEANT TO BE ANNUAL EVENT

General Committee Named To Make Arrangements For County Wide Celebration

of the entire nation on San Mateo County, which will benefit through increased tourist revenues, a greater demand for the county's flowers and agricultural products, as well as through the direct earnings of the fête itself.

It is proposed to hold the affair at Bay Meadows over a four day period, each day to be marked by a series of spectacular events, including a monster floral parade and battle of flowers on the Bay Meadows track.

There will be prizes for the best floral displays, a queen contest, in which a queen will be selected from each San Mateo County community, with the possibility of winning a four day trip to the San Diego Exposition and scores of other features.

The fête will be brought to a spectacular close with an immense fireworks display, which in itself will be one of the outstanding features of the four days.

It is proposed to make the San Mateo County Garden Floral Pageant an annual event that will rank with the Pasadena Rose Festival, the Portland Rose Festival and the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, to each of which events San Mateo County annually sends thousands of dollars worth of her choicest blooms.

ACTIVITIES FOR COUNTY COUNCIL

(Mrs. L. N. Zant, Pub. Chairman)
San Mateo County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary is sponsoring a dance in the San Mateo Legion club house, on Saturday evening, July 13, at 9 o'clock. San Mateo Post orchestra will furnish the music.

Proceeds from the dance will be used to assist in sending the council drill team to the Department of California convention in Fresno in August, where they are expected to make a brilliant showing. There are twenty-four members on the team, with their captain, making them the largest team in the state department of the Auxiliary. Intensive drills are being held at least once every week and progress is steady in perfecting form under the direction of Drill Master Sullivan of San Francisco.

Members of the San Mateo Unit who are on the team are in charge of the arrangements. Mrs. Lucille Soule, captain, is chairman. Assisting her are Mrs. Mary Dudderar, Mrs. Violet Bozovich, Mrs. Alice Glorfield, Mrs. Doris Raines, Mrs. Ruth Burns and Mrs. Lucille Shurtleff.
